Residential Service Area

Residential Group Care

Provider Name: Agency for Community Treatment Services (ACTS) - ABRINTH

Description:

- The ACTS Broward Residential Intensive Teen Home (ABRINTH) Pilot Program (the “Program”) is an innovative approach that provides therapeutic treatment that integrates trauma-informed principles and evidence-based programming into a small traditional group home setting for adolescent girls who have traditionally displayed difficulty remaining stable in foster homes and other residential settings. Adolescent girls served in the ABRINTH program are youth dually involved with both the children welfare and juvenile justice systems, have experienced multiple placement failures, and typically exhibit maladaptive behaviors that make locating placement difficult, such as running away, truancy, authority defiance, history of delinquency, and sexually reactive behaviors.
- ABRINTH’s philosophy is founded on the belief that all youth need love in a nurturing environment providing parental guidance, structure and support, while encouraging and promoting the youth to ultimately achieve independence. The idea is that all children need structure, consistency, loving guidance and support in an environment that provides safety and cares for their daily physical and emotional needs of the child. The more “home-like” the environment can be, the better able the youth is to heal, learn and move on from the trauma and series of events they have experienced. Throughout treatment at ABRINTH, the youth’s discharge planning and aftercare needs are addressed and the primary goals of treatment are the stabilization of behaviors and reintegration into the community.
- The ABRINTH Program provides opportunity for positive family and community activities and use evidence-based programming such as Botvin Life Skills Training, a skills based curriculum designed to promote positive mental health and personal development while preparing the youth to transition from foster care to living independently as an adult.
- While in the Program, youth will have access to a full-time therapist who will facilitate therapeutic engagement and crisis stabilization to meet each youth’s individualized treatment needs. Collaborating with a local educational partner, the Program offers a structured educational component that provides youth who are at risk of dropping out with better opportunities for success by working to improve their academic performance and building sustainable vocational and life skills.

Neighborhood Foster Homes

Provider Name: SOS Children's Villages Florida

Description:

- The Neighborhood Foster Homes program is an innovative pilot program jointly established between ChildNet and SOS Children's Villages Florida to increase more suitable placement options for sibling groups. At the core of the Neighborhood Foster Homes pilot program model is its unique situation as it is located in a traditional neighborhood in Broward County that has thirteen (13) licensed foster homes that are adjacent to each other within a Coconut Creek community.
- The Neighborhood Foster Homes pilot program is developed specifically to address the growing need for sibling groups in need of placement in foster homes which can assist in keeping them together while meeting the individualized needs of each child. Historically, these siblings may have been separated from each other and placed in separate foster homes or group homes due to lack of foster homes with the capacity to accommodate sibling groups, sibling groups of opposite gender, and/or sibling groups of children with diverse individual needs that cannot be accommodated or managed in one foster home. Each home is licensed with a stay-at-home parent whose sole responsibility is to care for the children placed in their homes.
- This pilot approach to fostering sibling groups has an inherent level of support that is provided to the children and foster parents due to the foster homes' close proximity to the SOS Children's Villages Florida parent agency which is also located within the neighborhood. These foster parents are supported by a back-up baby-sitter who provides additional supervision to the children and support to the foster parent as needed. Additionally, an intrinsic strength of this model is neighborhood social cohesion which offers a high level of interconnectedness among neighbors. By being a licensed foster parent, each neighbor is more likely to understand and can relate to the needs and behaviors exhibited by children placed in the Neighborhood Foster Homes. As a result of their similarities and shared experiences, these families are less likely to object to multiple police call-outs to the foster homes, due to runaway youth, and behavioral outbursts that have historically caused placement disruptions and neighborhood concerns. Based on their own experiences, foster parents within the Neighborhood Foster Homes pilot program acknowledges the need for parental support and are in a position to assist each other by providing natural support when dealing with the trauma experienced by sibling groups placed in the dependency system.

Target Population/Eligibility:

- Sibling groups or siblings (ages 0 through 17).
- Single children whose sibling(s) have been discharged from the Neighborhood Foster Homes program as a result of reunification, adoption, or achieving permanency through another permanency planning goal.

Outcome Measures:

- Percentage of children who are free from incidents of verified abuse/neglect while in the program.

Neighborhood Foster Homes

Provider Name: 4Kids of South Florida

Description:

- The Neighborhood Foster Homes program is an innovative program jointly established between ChildNet and 4Kids of South Florida to increase more suitable placement options for teenagers and sibling groups. At the core of the Neighborhood Foster Homes program model is its location in a traditional neighborhood in Broward County that has four (4) licensed foster homes that are within close proximity of each other.
- The Neighborhood Foster Homes program is developed specifically to address the growing need for available foster homes that can accommodate teenagers and sibling groups while meeting their individualized needs. Historically, siblings may have been separated from each other and placed in separate foster homes or group homes due to lack of foster homes with the capacity to accommodate sibling groups, sibling groups of opposite gender, and/or sibling groups of children with diverse individual needs that cannot be accommodated or managed in one foster home. Similarly, the likelihood of older youth being placed in foster homes has historically been very low and the availability of foster homes willing to care for teenagers remains very small. Each foster home caring for teenagers or siblings is licensed with at least one stay-at-home parent whose sole responsibility is to care for the children placed in their homes.
- This approach to fostering teenagers and sibling groups has an inherent level of support that is provided to the children and foster parents due to the foster homes' close proximity to the 4Kids of South Florida parent agency which is also located within the same neighborhood. These foster parents are supported by a back-up baby-sitter who provides additional supervision to the children and support to the foster parent as needed. Based on their own experiences, foster parents within the Neighborhood Foster Homes acknowledges the need for parental support and are in a position to assist each other by providing natural support when dealing with the trauma experienced by children placed in the dependency system.

Multisystemic Therapy (MST)

Description:

- Network Provider offers the intensive short-term home-based therapeutic intervention using the evidenced-based Multisystemic Therapy (MST). This therapeutic approach has been scientifically proven to address and reduce high risk and delinquent behaviors exhibited by youth and yield positive outcomes. Using a social ecology approach, the clinician works with the youth and family to focus on the youth's behaviors within the home, school, and community over a three-to-five-month period to address the destabilizing behaviors and prevent out-of-home placement.
- Based on the concept that youth behaviors are heavily impacted by their ecosystem of influence, while working with the youth to provide in-home intervention where the behaviors are occurring, the MST clinician is simultaneously working to identify the source(s) impacting the youth's behaviors both directly and indirectly. MST identifies the youth's ecosystem as family (poor parental supervision, parental substance abuse or mental health problems, poor relationships with parents and siblings) peers (association with other youth that use drugs or are delinquent, poor peer relationships), school (low grades, truancy, negative attitude towards school), and community (access to illegal items, violence).
- MST clinicians work with the youth's parent(s) to increase their protective factors, work with the youth to disassociate with peers who engage in delinquent behaviors and develop associations with prosocial peer groups, promote education, school attendance, and community involvement so the youth can become empowered to alter their social ecology and avert out-of-home placement.
- The overarching goals of the MST therapeutic approach are:
 - Eliminate or significantly reduce the frequency and severity of the youth's referral behavior(s).
 - Empower parents with skills and resources needed to independently address the inevitable difficulties that arise in raising children and adolescents.
 - Empower youth to cope with family, peer, school, and neighborhood problems.
 - MST services are provided to protect the best interests of the child, offer protective services in order to prevent any harm to the children in the family; stabilize the home environment; and preserve family life whenever possible.

Target Population/Eligibility:

- Clients to be served are families whose children have been identified by Child Protective Investigations as Unsafe where present and impending danger exists but the child can be served in the home, youth at risk of being locked-out of their home from a Juvenile Justice or Baker Act facility and subsequently entering/re-entering out-of-home care, and children who have been reunified with their families and are in need of more intensive intervention that addresses known determinants of serious maladaptive behaviors.
- Broward and Palm Beach County youth ages 11 to 17 who are exhibiting physical aggression at home, at school, or in the community, verbal aggression, verbal threats of harm to others, substance misuse, and who are at imminent risk of out-of-home placement.

- Parents/Caregivers shall participate in this high-quality evidence-based intervention program while receiving ongoing case management services provided by ChildNet or Dependency Case Management Organization, SOS Children’s Villages.
- All referrals for MST services must be coordinated with ChildNet’s Directors of Service Coordination or designee.
